Characterisation Workshop

This workshop will be run by Frances Bruce, our artistic director who says "In this workshop we will discover how to unpack and develop characterisation through the power of improvisation."

So for example, this could include how the use of the right gestures, facial expressions, accent and body language can help the actor convey their character and contribute to the audience's better appreciation of the play.

Our Next Show is underway

We had a great turnout to auditions last week - it was good to see so many there, both existing members and new faces, which such enthusiasm and talent.

It was a hard task to select the right mix of available people for the various roles. Unfortunately we can't find a role for everyone who auditioned...for one thing, there just wouldn't be enough room on the stage! So for those who didn't make the cut it's not a reflection on your talent and we hope to see you at future events and auditions.

The show company will be starting work next week too.

Set in the radio studio during the special live anniversary performance of a Sherlock Holmes story, the tensions and conflicts between the members of the cast and production team which have built up during the long running series come to a head. The off-mic drama threatens to interfere with the live broadcast, but whatever happens the show must go on...

We hope everyone will come along and see the show in early November - full details will be published soon! It will be fun!!

Also a mention for...

Kirsty Eyre, who contributed to our first show Then and Now has a new show The Baby Bubble, a comedy for new mums by new mums, which is visiting Vinters on 23rd October at 2pm. More details at www.class-stage.co.uk

Frances Bruce, our Artistic Director, is directing the Greek tragedy Antigone at Network Theatre in Waterloo, with performances on 23rd to 26th October at 7.30pm. More details at www.networktheatre.org
