100 Zombies Wanted in Streatham!

Call for Film Extras

Rob Savage, a multi-award winning director of film and commercials is looking for local actors to take part in a TV pilot for a horror show called 'Dawn of the Deaf'. It's about a zombie infection that's spread through sound, meaning that the last surviving inhabitants of earth are the Deaf. Some fantastic Deaf talent will be working in front of and behind the cameras and they hope that the project will bring Deaf culture into the mainstream in a fun and accessible way. The BBC have already agreed to feature them, and a very well-known TV star has been cast in one of the lead roles.

The final scene is being shot in Dunraven School Hall from 8:30-6:30 on Saturday 26th and Sunday 27th of September. The scene sees a huge black-tie event turn bloody as the guests start to transform into flesh-hungry zombies and end up tearing the host limb-from-limb. It's the big finale of the film and they're hoping to find upwards of 100+ extras to play our zombie hoards and munch some flesh.

Extras are needed for both Saturday and Sunday, But it's no problem if you can only do one day. If you're interested, please email dawnofthedeafcasting@gmail.com and let them know you'd like to be included and whether you're free for one or both days.

It'll be a great experience in terms of working on a large-scale professional film set and each actor will be fully made-up as a zombie, so it'll be a great opportunity for a new profile picture! Rob is also keen to promote STC along with the film as much as possible - we will be thanked by name on the credits and each individual actor will get a name credit.

Halloween in Streatham

Our tour of Streatham Hill Theatre is back

Last year we ran a very popular tour of Streatham's historic theatre, so popular in fact that we are back this year with a new theme.

Supernatural author Dennis Wheatley wrote many books based on the occult. For a time Wheatley lived in Streatham and his last house here burned down in mysterious circumstances!

His most famous book is The Devil Rides Out, published in 1934 shortly after Streatham Hill Theatre opened. It is rumoured that the theatre was built over a very auspicious site for devil worship, and that there have been some very spooky goings on there. This behind the scenes tour hopes to spread some light into the darkness...or maybe the other way round!?

We are currently developing this theatrical performance where anything might happen!

We'll be holding an event for anyone interested in taking part on or off stage shortly. Watch out for more information!

What happens off stage?

Workshop led by David Harvey - 13 October

Held in conjunction with Network Theatre Company, this event at Network Theatre in Waterloo will reveal the key behind the scenes activities and how to do them well, whilst touring a well-equipped working theatre space. (NTC's bar will be open for informal networking over a drink).

A SECOND TUESDAY EVENT: fun, relaxed and practical on-site in a working amateur theatre, great for actors and show directors alike, all abilities welcome - no experience necessary.
STC & NTC MEMBERS FREE. NON MEMBERS £3

Location: Network Theatre, 246A Lower Road, Waterloo, London SE1 8SF
Network Theatre is accessed via a service road under Waterloo Station - see www.networktheatre.org/map for directions.
