

A quick reminder from Streatham Theatre Company

View this in your browser

“2016 saw the departing of a galaxy of shiny entertainment stars - David Bowie, Prince, George Michael, Leonard Cohen, Alan Rickman and Victoria Wood to name but a few. It's easy to say many passed 'their time'; however, in the case of Victoria Wood that certainly was the case. She no doubt had had comic lines still to write and share and (we hope), scripts to be performed. We are left to remember and honour her in the best way possible – by revisiting her repertoire of scripts and recordings and continuing to chuckle. It's what she would have wanted.” Helen Mason, STC Events Secretary

TUESDAY 13th JUNE 7pm FOR 7.30pm AN EVENING WITH VICTORIA WOOD - PLAYREADING EVENT

About Victoria Wood

The tragic early passing of Victoria Wood was unquestionably a huge loss to the entertainment industry. Evening Standard's comment remains true:

Victoria Wood is (sic) the reigning queen of comedy ... the funniest woman in Britain, the Albert Hall record breaker, the top of her tree ... her comic brilliance is rooted in the fact that I am her, or rather she is me, she is every other woman in her record-breaking audiences ... her comedy is universal” Evening Standard

About the workshop

In celebration of Victoria Wood's talent and comedic genius we've decided to spend an evening reading her plays. We have copies of scripts for 3 plays: TALENT, GOOD FUN and PAT AND MARGARET. This is a relaxed evening to enjoy Victoria at her best. Come along to read or listen. This is not an audition, we're intending to giggle, laugh and have fun!
